DRIVER CRAWLED OUT UNINJURED

Women Turn Their Heads When J. M. & I. Train Strikes Milk Wagon in Morgan Street.

EXPECTED MAN TO BE KILLED

Engineer Gives Warning Whistle But Goodwin Unable to Get Over Track in Time.

Women turned their heads, when they saw the south-bound freight train on the J. M. & I. strike the Hill View dairy farm wagon in Morgan street at the intersection of the I. & C. traction line and the railroad this morning about nine o'clock. The small crowd of spectators saw the wagon smashed into splinters and the horse bowled over as if he had been a toothpick.

But they were astounded to see the driver, Enoch Goodwin, crawl out from under the pile of debris, with only a painful cut on his right hand, caused by coming in contact with a broken milk bottle. The horse was loosened from the wagon and got up uninjured.

The train struck the Blackledge milk wagon just back of the center of the bed of the vehicle and it seems nothing less than miraculous, according to eye witnesses, that Goodwin was not instantly killed. The train was running slow through the city and this fact probably saved the man's as well as the beast's life.

The few women who saw the collision say that the wagon was on the track, when a shrill whistle from the engine warned the driver that he was in danger. But he did not have time to clear the track as the engine was on him before the engineer had finished the warning whistle.

The driver says that he had no idea of the approach of the train until he heard the shriek of the whistle and looked up to see the large engine almost upon him. He made an effort to get out of the path of the panting monster, but he then saw that the effort was useless and the next instant it had struck his wagon.

The wagon was turned over on its right side and the horse was also knocked over. The wagon was practically reduced to splinters, the only parts being left to it were two wheels and the shafts. The horse was thrown forward on its head and the driver said that he expected to find the horse dead as the animal never moved a muscle. But when he was unhitched he arose without a scratch.

There was milk in the air for a time as practically all of the bottles were broken and the contents scattered all over the ground. The freight was delayed only a short time while the wreck was cleared off of the track and the dispatch on the traction line was also delayed for a few minutes while the wrecked wagon and broken milk bottles were taken off the tracks.

The production of mica in this country for the last year was valued at a little more than a quarter of a million dollars. Nearly all of this is used in the electrical industry, as mica is one of the best insulating materials known.

KALER LET FISH GET AWAY IN CAR

St. Paul Editor Carries Them All the Way Home and Then the Bucket Breaks.

BUT HE SCOOPS 'EM UP AGAIN

Editor Walter Kaler and party of St. Paul friends have returned from a delightful fishing trip at Chapman Lake, says the Greensburg News. They had their accustomed good luck and made some fancy landings. The good luck, however, deserted them when they arrived at St. Paul. As they were in the act of leaving the car one of the large pails containing several pounds of fancy fish gave away and let the entire contents slide out into the car floor. While the other members of the party endeavored to pacify the irate wearer of blue buttons, Walter got heavy in collecting his prizes and perfecting a get away.

FLAMES DESTROY BARN NEAR MILROY

Blaze of Unknown Origin is Discovered After it Had Made Good Headway.

FLAMES SPREAD TO A FIELD

Fire, originating from an unknown cause, broke out in the barn on the Sam Shelhorn farm, some ten miles north of town, near Milroy, Monday evening at 5 o'clock, and when the flames had completed their work, the structure with contents was a ruined mass of charred debris, says the Greensburg News.

The fire was discovered blazing freely in the roof. The flames spread rapidly and available assistance could not prevent the destruction of the building. The flames by aid of a strong breeze were communicated to a clover field adjoining the barn lot and several acres of clover hay burned. Al Bowman is the tenant on the place and lost a set of harness, a few tons of hay and several chickens in the barn at the time of the fire. The loss will amount to several hundred dollars, on which there is no insurance.

YOUNG MEN ARE UP AND DOING

Commercial Club Directors Busy This Week and Are Receiving Much Encouragement.

WORK IN BUSINESS LIKE WAY

"Flying Squadron" Has Enlisted Many New Members—Club Gets Some Good Propositions.

The Young Men's Commercial club is as busy this week as a farmer's wife on threshing day. The directors are considering a number of things and say that because there is no noise it is no sign they are not working. They are investigating different lines of work, and laying the ground work for one of the best organizations of the kind in the State.

Much time has been spent this week in enlisting new members and the "flying squadron" has met with much encouragement in its work this week. Men are coming to realize that they are going at the thing in a business-like way. The board of directors is perfectly willing to receive suggestions and is anxious that all the work be taken part in by the club as a whole, although it is impossible to leave details to the entire membership.

The board has been doing work in the last two weeks which would make many sit up and take notice if the full result was known. The directors have been receiving even more encouragement than was expected from various sources. They are taking advantage of every one of these and letting no opportunity slip by to make Rushville a larger and better city. They feel that their work is now beginning to bear fruit and they hope to have something tangible to report to the members of the club in a short time.

Several good propositions have been made to the city, but it is deemed advisable to keep these confined to the membership of the club, as too much publicity might cause the failure of these propositions.

SALOONS CLOSE THIS WEEK

Connerville Will be Almost Dry by Saturday Night.

Connerville will see all the saloons closed this week with the exception of one. The licenses of Pete Hill and Harry Eschelman expire on the night of September 6, next Monday, but as the first Monday in September is Labor Day, a holiday, they can't operate their places of business on that day and Saturday will be their last day.

New Editor's Foreword

In taking the place made vacant by Mr. Geraghty as editor of the Republican I appreciate the fact that I am supposed to keep up a standard which is hardly equaled in any city twice the size of Rushville in the State. After having active editorial charge of the paper for three weeks I appreciate even more what is expected. I further appreciate the fact that without our friends, who have been so valuable in the past and who we hope will remain so in the future, the paper would be swimming with one hand paralyzed.

With the managers of the paper I realize how valuable Mr. Harold's work as city editor is, and with his help, we shall continue in the future as we have in the past, try to please the people, but not expect to please all of them at any time. We have been in the newspaper business too long to expect to please all the people all the time. We shall continue to give the news and try to give the patrons of the paper one of the breeziest and newsiest papers published in any of the county seats of the State.

CLAUDE SIMPSON.

MOOSE TO HAVE A LODGE HERE

Deputy Organizers of State Are in Rushville and Are Receiving Much Encouragement.

ORDER IS SIMILAR TO ELKS

Men Come to This City Well Recommended and Interest Prominent Citizens in Movement.

The Loyal Order of Moose, the social-beneficial fraternity that is making much headway in the middle west, will have a lodge in Rushville. At least that is the belief of Deputy State Organizers Carl C. Hartman and R. C. Buchanan who have opened offices at 229 Main street and are meeting with considerable encouragement.

The order of "Moose" is much like the Elks except that there is a splendid weekly benefit and other features that appeal to the people in every city the order is established.

The local organizers were visited today by Col. C. M. Raphun, the Deputy National Organizer and he found everything ship-shape and believes that there will be a lodge of several hundred members instituted here within the next two weeks.

Messrs Hartman and Buchanan are men deserving the citizen's support and they come here well recommended. They will conduct their campaign upon business principles and have a proposition that is well worthy of attention.

Rushville can well afford to welcome an enterprise of this character and some of the prominent citizens are identified with the movement.

LOOK OUT! IT MAY FROST TONIGHT

Weather Man Says the Lowlands in Northern Portion May be Affected by Cool Weather.

IT WOULD DO GREAT DAMAGE

It may frost tonight!

Such is the warning sent out by the weather station and those who were up early this morning think that there will be at least a light frost tonight. The weather man was good enough to add that the region that would probably be affected would be the lowland in the northern part of the State.

However, it may be well to cover up flowers right here in Rush county for even the weather man is mistaken sometimes. A frost this early would do much damage.

RUTLEDGE AT WORK AGAIN

Thinks he Will be Able to Resume Regular Duties Soon.

John Rutledge of Rushville is helping out at the Pennsylvania office this week, says the New Castle Courier. He was struck by a morning passenger train several weeks ago and badly, but not seriously injured. He temporarily lost the use of his right shoulder, but thinks that it is coming out of the kinks in good shape. The nerve leading through the arm to the hand and fingers is affected, but that difficulty is slowly disappearing. Rutledge thinks he will be physically able to resume his duties about October 1.

GERAGHTY LEAVES FOR OLD NEW YORK

Former Editor of Republican Steams Away to Fame and Fortune in the East.

ON NEW YORK HERALD THERE

With the bird cage carefully stowed under the car seat, his cane dangling from the hat rack, a smile on his face, and waving the Chattanooga salute to his friends who were at the train, Tom J. Geraghty, former editor of the Republican, left this morning for New York City, fame and fortune. Mr. Geraghty goes to take a position on the city staff of the New York Herald, and his friends here have little doubt that in a few months he will be listed among "Hoosiers who have made good in New York."

Mr. Geraghty has spent practically all of his life in this city and left with a feeling of sorrow, although glad of his opportunity to take a whirl at newspaper work in a metropolis. During his newspaper work on the Daily Republican he has won an enviable reputation among editors all over the State and each newspaper man who has met Mr. Geraghty is confident he will be a success on the greatest metropolitan daily in the world.

Mrs. Geraghty and children will join her husband in New York City in a few weeks.

FIKES FOUND IN FRIEND'S CELLAR

Police at Indianapolis Make a Round Up.

HELD ON ABDUCTION CHARGE

Following Recent Sensational Case

Which Attracted Much Attention at St. Louis, the Alleged Abductors of Maggie Peterson Are Found in Indianapolis—One of the Fikes Is Also Held on a Charge of Attempted Wife Murder—Other Arrests Also Made.

Indianapolis, Sept. 1.—Charged with attempting to murder his wife the night of June 11 last, Charles Fike has been arrested. With Fike was his son, Everett Fike, whom the authorities of St. Louis want on a charge of abducting Maggie Peterson, living on Singleton street, Indianapolis, and William Fike and Fike's brother-in-law, Harry Sage, who is charged with concealing Fike and the son. William Fike is charged with carrying concealed weapons.

The arrest of the Fikes brought to a close a long search in which the police have been tireless. They received word that Fike and his son, who have been in St. Louis, returned to Indianapolis a week ago. The information the police had was that the men had eight places in which they could be concealed. Three of these were the homes of relatives. After searching three places the police became convinced that Fike and his son were at the home of Harry Sage, 2021 Shelby street. Seven officers went to Sage's home. After searching the place thoroughly the policemen went to the basement, where they found Fike and his son concealed in an obscure corner. They were captured without offering resistance. On William Fike the police found a large knife. He was taken with the others.

Miss Peterson, who says she is the wife of Everett Fike, makes the sensational charge that she was kidnapped by Fike and taken to St. Louis, but says she finally escaped and protected herself with a shotgun. Young Fike says he was never married to the girl, and denies that he carried her off against her will.

She says she received a telephone call from Fike several weeks ago. He induced her to get in a wagon with Alva Leonard, who is now under arrest in St. Louis, to go to Putnam county, where they were on the farm of a relative. She said he would not give her an opportunity to escape, and finally took her to St. Louis, where she escaped to a farmer by the name of Case. Here a fight occurred, in which she protected herself with the shotgun. Fike escaped, but Leonard was arrested.

Mrs. Fike, who is now living at 1442 Shelby street, said her husband attacked her on the street and came near murdering her because she refused to live with him. She says the worry over the trouble was indirectly responsible for the death of her mother, which occurred several weeks ago. Fike is forty-eight years old, while the son is twenty-four years old.

PLUCKY WOMAN

Sheriff's Sister Prevents Jail Delivery at Lawrenceburg.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Sept. 1.—Tides Negley, charged with dynamiting fish, and George J. Griffin and E. L. Mitchell, each charged with assault, taking advantage of the temporary absence of Sheriff Richard White, made an unsuccessful attempt to break jail. The prisoners obtained two small saws and had succeeded in cutting through the iron bars in a rear window of the county jail.

The prisoners were preparing to crawl through the opening when they were discovered by Miss Alice White, sister of the sheriff. She procured two large revolvers and prevented the prisoners from escaping until Meredith Bruce, deputy circuit court clerk, came to her assistance. The men were placed in solitary confinement.

It was one of the most spectacular races ever seen on the turf. From the time the word was given until the horses were within fifteen yards of the wire the winner was in doubt. There were fifteen horses in the race.

Pressnall Reunion

The first Pressnall reunion met at the home of John P. Ratcliffe, three and one-half miles north of Greasboro, in Henry county, Indiana, Saturday Aug. 28.

The morning was spent in social conversation and the noon hour a sumptuous dinner was served on the lawn. In the afternoon a permanent organization was formed with Emory Ratcliff, son of John P. Ratcliff, as president, and Miss Van Meter, as secretary.

Then they read and talked over the genealogy of the Pressnall's. Daniel Pressnall came from England in 1750 and settled in Penn. and later in Randolph county, North Carolina. All the Pressnalls in the U. S. are descendants of this one man and they would number many hundreds now. He had three sons, John, Stephen and Daniel. The president had these present to divide in three crowds and take their places as descendants of one of these three. Then the names of each of their children were read and those who were descendants of them arose. There were about one hundred and twenty present. One interesting thing noticed in looking over the genealogy was that the Pressnalls seem to be noted for their large families. More than one had fifteen children each.

John P. Ratcliffe, where the reunion was held was a descendant of John Pressnall, his mother was a daughter of John Pressnall.

After looking over the genealogy several interesting speeches were made.

The reunion will meet at the home of Luther Ratcliffe, one mile and a quarter west of Kinnard, on the third Thursday in August next year.

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

MISS E. A. ROSS, Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

MITCHELL SAVED FROM CHAIN GANG

Development in Sensational Georgia Case.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 1.—The prison commission, yielding to the pleading of rich and influential citizens, has recommended that the sentence of W. H. Mitchell be commuted to a year on the state prison farm from that of twelve months upon the chain gang at hard labor.

The Mitchell case is one of the most celebrated in Georgia. One day last fall a Miss Linton, a celebrated and wealthy beauty of Thomasville, received a note telling her that her brother was in a serious condition and asking her to come to him with the bearer. The bearer was apparently an old negro. The young woman obeyed the summons. When upon a lonely road in a buggy, the supposed negro dragged the young woman from the vehicle and attempted an assault. He was driven off by a passer-by and Miss Linton swore that in the supposed negro she recognized Mitchell. The horse and buggy used by the assailant was one that Mitchell had hired from a local livery.

Mitchell was tried, convicted and sentenced to the chain gang for twelve months. The friends of Miss Linton contended that the penalty was inadequate, and when Mitchell's friends applied for a pardon, the young girl's friends rallied to oppose it. The prison commission heard the case for two days, with the above decision, which Governor Brown has yet to approve.

THE ADVANCE OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE

How the Movement Has Invaded the Ranks of the Four Hundred in the United States and Become a Riot in London.

Methods of the American and English Suffragettes Contrasted — Prominent Women Who Are Interested in "the Cause."

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

REV. ANNA HOWARD SHAW.

THE woman suffrage movement has been made fashionable. It has meetings in Newport and national headquarters in Fifth avenue. It has invaded the ranks of the Four Hundred, where it divides honors with bridge whist and monkey dinners.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has opened her exclusive Marble House as a lecture hall for its devotees. As an added inducement she allows the public to have a peep at her celebrated art collection and her palatial Newport rooms. True, this new gospel is not "without money and without price," but costs $5 a throw, the funds going into the treasury of the cause. A large array of people were not only eager to pay the price to see the Belmont art treasures, but were even willing to remain to the suffragist lectures as an added price or added inducement, according to the point of view. This method of propaganda is somewhat different from that of the English suffragettes who go to jail for their principles, but why break into jail when one can break into society?

These Newport meetings, which were the challenge, "I think I am just as good as a man," when the speaker in her heart of hearts probably thinks she is much better than a man—and probably is. If this were a question of goodness it is man that would be disfranchised. It is really surprising that women should actually want to vote, however, when a large section of the men do not want to and will not unless they are paid for it.

Where Suffrage Has Been Granted.

Women can now vote in New Zealand, Australia, Finland and Norway. They have suffrage rights in Great Britain in all except parliamentary elections. They can cast a ballot in school elections in most of the states of this country and have full suffrage in Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Utah. In the state of Washington a constitutional amendment is now pending before the people which, if adopted, will add a fifth suffrage state. Wherever the experiment has been made the result has been neither a retrogression to barbarism nor a flying leap into the millennium. On the contrary, little or no change has been observed in political conditions. The women have voted, in a very few cases have been elected to office, and that is all. The great machine of popular government has ground on very much as it did before. Those who had been wildly shouting either for or against the proposition saw that there was lit-

AMERICAN SOCIETY WOMEN INTERESTED IN THE SUFFRAGIST MOVEMENT AND ARREST OF AN ENGLISH SUFFRAGETTE.

but recently held, were addressed by Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National Suffrage society, and by Professor Zueblin of Chicago. Over one meeting the mayor of Newport presided and over the other the governor of Rhode Island. Mrs. Belmont, who, by the way, was formerly Mrs. Vanderbilt, spoke briefly. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe was present and was accorded an ovation. It should be said in the interest of accuracy that, in addition to the five dollar tickets, which admitted to the house, there were also one dollar tickets, which admitted only to the lawn, where the meetings were held. Even at these prices there was a large attendance, which shows devotion to the movement.

A Social Fad.

Nor is Mrs. Belmont the only woman of the Four Hundred who wants to vote. Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Mrs. George Gould, Mrs. Richard Stevens, Miss Caroline Duer and others whose names are sufficient to make flunkies of two hemispheres know are also enlisted. If this keeps on the thing will become as fashionable as the peach basket hat. Then there will be no stopping it. Every woman in the land will be talking for it, and mere man will be compelled to grant her request if only to stop the din. A certain section of the unmarried suffragettes have even gone to the length of resolving that they will not wed any man unless he is in sympathy with the cause. This ought to make some converts, also a lot of masculine hypocrites. When a man really wants to get married he is as clay in the hands of the potter—he will promise anything.

There is no question that the suffrage cause is advancing. In New York it has become a fad and in London a riot. It is even crowding millinery as a topic of feminine conversation. On every hand one can now hear the occasion for brainstorms and mercifully subdued. The writer lived for four years in a state that has woman suffrage and has been quite calm on the subject ever since. Those persons who imagine that votes for women will make any radical difference in political conditions either for better or worse should see the thing actually tried out and be disillusioned. Women may be better than men, but they vote about the same way. In some elections they scarcely vote at all. In others they flock to the polls as they would to a bargain sale.

One thing can be said—that very little fraud has been discovered in their exercise of the ballot. Nor are they insulted at the polls. Nor, again, are they degraded or made unwomanly by taking their part in politics. These are not questions of opinion, but of fact. They are bugaboos that have been banished, but with them disappeared the fond dream that woman suffrage would bring Eden back to earth. On the whole, perhaps, the effect has been good and yet not so glaringly good that there is any cause for wild excitement. I am neither arguing for nor against the proposition, you understand, but am giving the results of my own observation of suffrage as it actually works.

Increased Nervous Prostration.

In England the suffragettes, under the lead of Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughter, have gone up in balloons, started riots, mobbed the home of the prime minister, made several vain attempts to break into the house of commons, held outdoor meetings, raised disturbances at Liberal rallies so that the speakers could not proceed, gone to prison, had themselves sent through the mails as living letters and done every other odd and striking thing that their fertile imaginations could suggest, all for the good of the cause. Whether or not they have added to the suffrage sentiment, they have unquestionably increased the nervous prostration of England. They have also made a laughingstock of the government and the police. That is the surprising part of their performance and reveals true leadership. It would naturally be supposed that these outlandish stunts would have brought ridicule upon their perpetrators, but they were so engineered by the resourceful suffragettes that the ridicule was turned against their opponents. They showed that, whether or not women know enough to vote, they are sufficiently wise to outmaneuver men. This was not a new realization, however. We knew it before.

Compared to their British sisters our American suffragists have been quite mild and circumspect. In other words, they have been perfect ladies. No screaming, howling and derisive dancing for them. In the United States "the cause" is in the pink tea stage. A number of ladies gather in some other lady's parlor and talk it over, or if they grow exceptionally radical and militant they hire a hall, make speeches and adopt resolutions. They also send out tracts. All this is quite harmless and unexciting. It does not attract the spot light or the police. There is no chance for an American suffragist to become a martyr. The worst she can do is to go to meetings and leave her tyrant husband to nurse the baby and wash the dishes. It is one thing to be dragged off to a dungeon by a ham handed policeman and quite another to go up to Mrs. Astor-bill's and hear somebody orate in a contralto voice. You will never get the American sister to go to a damp and stuffy jail. If it comes to that, she will simply take her hubby by the ear and tell him that she wants a new ballot box and will see about it when he goes downtown? He will. The American man is well trained. He is in a proper state of subjection, and when wifey gets good and ready to vote there will be nothing else to it.

Moreover, the American brother is foxy. He will never give his woman-kind a chance to play to the grand stand in the martyrdom role. When she wants to present her petition to the legislature he invites her right into the main hall, smiles, listens and then forgets it. John Bull is different. He imagines that if he ever lets Mrs. Bull have a say and help run things his dignity will get mused upon, so he will not even listen to her. This gives Mrs. B. a chance to scream and gain the sympathy of the neighbors. Now, if the British government had been wise there would have been none of this hullabaloo, but Mrs. Pankhurst, Miss Pankhurst and all the other Pankhursts would have been allowed to present their petition and speak their little piece and that would have been the end of it.

Less Nerve Racking Methods.

It is a far cry from an English jail to Mrs. Belmont's Marble House at Newport. And even at that the English jail may live longer in history. Who knows? For my single self, however, I must say that I like the American way better. It is more comfortable even though it may not sound so heroic and thrilling in the school histories of the future. And in the long run it will probably prove just as effective. The women of Finland got the ballot without making any noise about it. Australasian ladies did not go up in balloons and muss up their hair, yet they have the ballot box now as an ornament on the center table. The wives and mothers of Colorado did not chain themselves to the railings in the statehouse, and still they proudly march to the polls and spoil as many ballots as the men. Norway had no Pankhurst family, but the Norse husband has had to divide the suffrage watermelon with his better half. Throwing bricks, marching in the middle of the street and screaming on cart tails may be necessary in England, but here it would simply be laughed off the map, and the women would do most of the laughing.

We have no Pankhursts in America, but we have Mrs. Howe and Miss Shaw, and we have the memory of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony and Frances E. Willard. Miss Shaw, who is both an ordained minister and a doctor of medicine, was herself born in England, but escaped at a very early age before she felt the bad effects. She was reared on a Michigan farm and had scarcely more educational advantages than Abraham Lincoln, yet she was so assiduous in gaining every possible scrap of knowledge that at fifteen she was a school-teacher and shortly after was preaching in a little church. The girl preacher was eloquent, and the congregation sent her to a theological college in Boston. Her church, the Methodist Episcopal, refused regularly to ordain her because she was a woman. Then she went to the Methodist Protestant and received her ordination papers. For years she occupied a Massachusetts pulpit, being one of the first women preachers in America. She also worked in the slums of Boston and, in order that she might be of more service to the poor, studied and took the degree of M. D., never charging a penny, however, for her medical services. She became widely known as a pulpit orator even before she became prominently identified with the suffrage movement. Now she is regarded as one of the most effective speakers on the platform. Perhaps her greatest power lies in her deep religious sentiment, but she is also a wit and can tell stories. Her voice is rich and musical, and her white hair and rose face add to her charm. More than all else, she believes in her message. With such a leader and with such financial and social backing as that furnished by Mrs. Belmont, Mrs. Mackay and others, the American suffragist movement may be heard from during the next few years.

THIS AND THAT

The empty coal bin certainly gives "chizly" mornings.

New Castle Courier: They say that a life preserver isn't a bad thing to take with you into a Rushville saloon these sloppy days.

Of course, the fact that Mr. Geraghty was rushed during his last few hours in Rushville is responsible for the fact that he said he had a buggy baby instead of a baby buggy for sale.

And in addition to the cool weather, the "raw, stewed or fried" season opened today.

Still it wasn't a bad idea for the colored excursionist to use a knife when he wanted to "cut out" the noise.

Don't be too severe with J. K. Mattox for tearing the top off his wagon when he was thrown out. He didn't mean to—it was purely an accident.

It is regarded as bad form to walk in your sleep at any time, but walking in your sleep on a train is unusually bad.

And to think the family reunion and straw hat season is almost over.

There is nothing better we know of for all kinds of troubles than Pineples. These pills are really excellent in cases of weak back and backache, pains in the neck of the bladder, rheumatic pain and kindred ailments, due to weakened, disordered kidneys. Sold at Lytle's drug store.

INJURED GIRL IMPROVING

Victim of Carbolic Acid Burns is Recovering Rapidly.

Miss Minnie Disselkoe of Falmouth, who was badly burned when she applied carbolic acid to her body Sunday to cure ivy poisoning is improving nicely and Dr. Paxton of Glenwood, who attended the girl, believes that he will not have to give her any more attention after tomorrow. The sensori nerves which were paralyzed have become all right again and physicians believe that she will be all right again in a few days. Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Disselkoe, who were in New York at the time of the accident have returned home.

JERSEY HERD IS NOW IN QUARANTINE

Four Men Went From Here to Bring A. P. Walker's Cattle to Farm Here.

LANDED IN NEW YORK CITY

A. P. Walker, who has been on the Jersey Isle for several weeks, buying the famous Jersey cattle, has shipped a herd to this country. He bought about one hundred and thirty head this trip. They were shipped to New York City and will have to remain in Patterson, New Jersey, for sixty days in quarantine. This is done so that imported cattle cannot spread disease among the cattle in this country. Dan Drake, Larrie Richey, Ed Schantz and William Lucas have gone East to bring the herd home.

Notice to the Public.

OH MY, LOOK WHO'S HERE! MR. OYSTER.

Bon vivants all over the U. S. gathered at their favorite restaurants and gave a hearty welcome to that popular bivalve, the oyster, who opened the season of 1909-1910 today. All over the country the little shoot-the-chutes act, with the throats of his admirers as the chutes. Although there are no glaring posters on dead walls to announce the "grand opening" of the oyster season and the new leaf of the calendar and the signs of the restaurants proclaim it. The tradition of the relation between the "r" in the spelling of a month and the edible quality of this sea food still has its believers. Indeed, all the oyster dealers count September 1 as the beginning of their year's business, and for the last week they have been getting their shipments under way for points as far off as San Francisco.

The demand for oysters since May 1 has been small, and confined almost entirely to the East. The remainder of the country, according to the dealers, is more strongly convinced that the oysters are affluities. From the seed grounds off Connecticut and Rhode Island down to the fatening beds off Rockaway and in Prince's Bay and Newark Bay oyster growers have been working for months in preparation for today, when they tear their innocent charges from the cool, salty depths and introduce them to a cruel but appreciative public.

The oyster dealers say they expect a good season this year, as the sale of the bivalves was never brisker at the beginning, and not a man in the business could fill the orders he had on his books.

INCREASE IN REGISTRY FEE

Change in the Rates Follows Careful Investigation Started by Postmaster General Hitchcock.

WILL BE TWO CENTS HIGHER

Believed That Service Will be Placed on Better and More Business Like Basis.

An increase of two cents is to be made in the near future in the fee for the registration of letters and mail packages. Announcement of the proposed change has been made by Postmaster General Hitchcock to increase the registration fee followed an extended inquiry into the registry system by a special committee appointed by the postmaster general. It was decided to call in a score of registry officials of ripe experience and ability from various parts of the country for a more general meeting with the postmaster general. It is understood to be Mr. Hitchcock's purpose to take up the registry system first in considering all branches of the postal service for reorganization wherever greater efficiency and less expenditure may be effected. It is thought that the service may be placed on more businesslike basis without working undue hardship or imposing unreasonable burdens on the public.

By law the postmaster general is authorized to make the registry fee as high as twenty cents. In 1847 it was reduced from fifteen cents to eight cents, but increased to ten cents in 1875. It was reduced from ten cents to eight cents in 1893.

CLEANING BEE AT CHURCH

Women Scour and Scrub Interior of St. Paul's M. E. Church.

It was cleaning day at St. Paul's M. E. church today and about twenty-five women worked and worked hard. Of course there was some talking, but just the same the work was done and done well. They scrubbed and scoured and scoured, and really it looked like the genuine house cleaning that causes so much trouble in the spring. The church has just been re-frescoed, the carpets cleaned and when it is ready for services again will look as good as new.

CHAPTER XV.

A Test.

Du Sang had the sidewise gait of a wolf, and crossed the street with the choppy walk of the man out of a long saddle. Being both uncertain and quick, he was a man to slip a trail easily. He traveled around the block and disappeared among the many open doors that blazed along Hill street. Less alert trailers than the two behind him would have been at fault; but when he entered the place he was looking for, Kennedy was so close that Du Sang could have spoken to him had he turned around.

Kennedy passed directly ahead. A moment later Whispering Smith put his head inside the door of the joint Du Sang had entered, withdrew it, and, rejoining his companions, spoke in an undertone: "A negro dive; he's lying low. Now we will keep our regular order. It's a half-basement, with a bar on the left; crap games at the table behind the screen on the right. Kennedy, will you take the rear end of the bar? It covers the whole room and the back door. George, pass in ahead of me and step just to the left of the slot machine; you've got the front door there and everything behind the screen, and I can get close to Du Sang. Look for a thinish, yellow-faced man with a brown hat and a brown shirt—and pink eyes—shooting craps under this window. I'll shoot craps with him. Is your heart pumping, George? Never mind, this is easy! Farrell, you're first!"

The dive, badly lighted and ventilated, was counted tough among tough places. White men and colored mixed before the bar and about the tables. When Smith stepped around the screen and into the flare of the hanging lamps, Du Sang stood in the small corner below the screened street window. McCloud, though vitally interested in looking at the man that had come to town to kill him, felt his attention continually wandering back to Whispering Smith. The clatter of the rolling dice, the guttural jargon of the negro gamblers, the drift of men to and from the bar, and the clouds of tobacco smoke made a hazy background for the stoop-shouldered man with his gray hat and shabby coat, dust-covered and travel-worn. Industrious licking the broken wrapper of a cheap cigar and rolling it fondly under his forefinger, he was making his way unostentatiously toward Du Sang. Thirty-odd men were in the saloon, but only two knew what the storm center moving slowly across the room might develop. Kennedy, seeing everything and talking pleasantly with one of the barkeepers, his close-set teeth gleaming 20 feet away, stood at the end of the bar sliding an empty glass between his hands. Whispering Smith pushed past the on-lookers to get to the end of the table where Du Sang was shooting. He made no effort to attract Du Sang's attention, and when the latter looked up he could have pulled the gray hat from the head of the man whose brown eyes were mildly fixed on Du Sang's dice; they were lying just in front of Smith. Looking indifferently at the intruder, Du Sang reached for the dice; just ahead of his right hand, Whispering Smith's right hand, the finger-tips extended on the table, reached in front of them; it might have been through accident, or it might have been through design. In his left hand Smith held the broken cigar, and without looking at Du Sang he passed the wrapper again over the tip of his tongue and slowly across his lips.

Du Sang now looked sharply at him, and Smith looked at his cigar. Others were playing around the semi-circular table—it might mean nothing. Du Sang waited. Smith lifted his right hand from the table and felt in his waistcoat for a match. Du Sang, however, made no effort to take up the dice. He watched Whispering Smith scratch a match on the table, and, either because it failed to light or through design, it was scratched the second time on the table, marking a cross between the two dice.

The meanest negro in the joint would not have stood that, yet Du Sang hesitated. Whispering Smith, mildly surprised, looked up. "Hello, Pearlina! You shooting here?" He pushed the dice back toward the outlaw. "Shoot again!"

Du Sang, scowling, snapped the dice and threw badly. "Up jump the devil, is it? Shoot again!" And, pushing back the dice, Smith moved closer to Du Sang. The two men touched arms. Du Sang, threatened in a way wholly new to him, waited like a snake braved by a mysterious enemy. His eyes blinked like a badger's. He caught up the dice and threw. "Is that the best you can do?" asked Smith. "See here!" He took up the dice. "Shoot with me!" Smith threw the dice up the table toward Du Sang. Once he threw craps, but, reaching directly in front of Du Sang, he picked the dice up and threw eleven. "Shoot with me, Du Sang."

"What's your game?" snapped Du Sang, with an oath.

"What do you care, if I've got the coin? I'll throw you for $20 gold pieces."

Du Sang's eyes glittered. Unable to understand the reason for the affront, he stood like a cat waiting to spring. "This is my game!" he snarled.

"Then play it."

"Look here, what do you want?" he demanded, angrily.

Smith stepped closer. "Any game you've got. I'll throw you left-handed,

"Take Your Hand from Your Gun, You Albino!"

Du Sang. With his right hand he snapped the dice under Du Sang's nose and looked squarely into his eyes. "Got any Sugar Buttes money?"

Du Sang for an instant looked keenly back; his eyes contracted in that time to a mere narrow slit; then, sudden as thought, he sprang back into the corner. Kennedy, directly across the table, watched the lightning-like move. For the first time the craps-dealer looked impatiently up.

It was a showdown. No one watching the two men under the window breathed for a moment. Whispering Smith, motionless, only watched the half-closed eyes. "You can't shoot craps," he said, coldly. "What can you shoot, Pearlina? You can't stop a man on horseback."

Du Sang knew he must try for a quick kill or make a retreat. He took in the field at a glance. Kennedy's teeth gleamed only ten feet away, and with his right hand half under his coat lapel he toyed with his watch-chain. McCloud had moved in from the slot machine and stood at the point of the table, looking at Du Sang and laughing at him. Whispering Smith threw off all pretense. "Take your hand away from your gun, you albino! I'll blow your head off left-handed if you pull! Will you get out of this town to-night? If you can't drop a man in the saddle at 250 yards, what do you think you'd look like after a break with me? Go back to the whelp that hired you, and tell him when he wants a friend of mine to send a man that can shoot. If you are within 20 miles of Medicine Bend at daylight I'll rope you like a fat cow and drag you down Front street!"

Du Sang, with burning eyes, shrank narrower and smaller into his corner, ready to shoot if he had to, but not liking the chances. No man in Williams Cache could pull or shoot with Du Sang, but no man in the mountains had ever drawn successfully against the man that faced him.

Whispering Smith saw that he would not draw. He taunted him again in low tones, and, backing away, spoke laughingly to McCloud. While Kennedy covered the corner, Smith backed to the door and waited for the two to join him. They halted a moment at the door, then they backed slowly up the steps and out into the street.

There was no talk till they reached the Wickup office. "Now, will some of you tell me who Du Sang is?" asked McCloud, after Kennedy and Whispering Smith with banter and laughing had gone over the scene.

Kennedy picked up the ruler. "The wickedest, cruelest man in the bunch—and the best shot."

"Where is your hat, George—the one he put the bullet through?" asked Whispering Smith, limp in the big chair. "Burn it up; he thinks he missed you. Burn it up now. Never let him find out what a close call you had. Du Sang! Yes, he is cold-blooded as a wild-cat and cruel as a soft bullet. Du Sang would shoot a dying man, George, just to keep him squirming in the dirt. Did you ever see such eyes in a human being, set like that and blinking so in the light? It's bad enough to watch a man when you can see his eyes. Here's hoping we're done with him!"

A Tip to Dr. Eliot.
Oh, Doctor, Doctor Eliot, we're very, very sure
To form your five foot library must be no sinecure.
For everybody's butting in with two or three pet books.
And you know the adage tried and true about "too many cooks!"

The schoolboy wants "Tom Sawyer" and the "Life of Deadwood Dick."
The maiden of romantic age love tales alone would pick.
The housewife swears a cookbook you should place upon the shelf.
Oh, everybody knocks your choice and makes a list himself!

But don't you let them tease you, your discretion to confuse.
Go on! You know your business. Build the shelf of books you choose.
But whisper! Leave one little niche where one small book will fit—
No, not the works of Shakespeare nor the Bible—not a bit!

'Tis not a work of fiction nor an epic—far from that—
But when its title's mentioned every heart goes pitapat.
Include it in your five foot shelf and you'll be blessed, kind sir,
For, oh, it is the check book to which we here refer!

GREAT BASEBALL ENTHUSIAST TEXAN'S RIDE TO WASHINGTON

Career of Harry C. Pulliam, Late National League President.

Harry Clay Pulliam, president of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs, who recently died in New York by shooting himself, was born in Scottsville, Ky., thirty-nine years ago, and soon after finishing his college course he went to Louisville to take up newspaper work. He served part of the time in the capacity of city editor, but was also interested in baseball. In 1898 he resigned as city editor of the Louisville Commercial to accept the presidency of the Louisville club. Prior to that he had served a year in the Kentucky legislature.

In Louisville Pulliam formed the acquaintance of Barney Dreyfuss, now the owner of the Pittsburgh club. They were associated in baseball for a number of years in Louisville and Pittsburgh. Dreyfuss became president of the Louisville club, and Pulliam became his secretary and treasurer. When Dreyfuss got hold of the Pittsburgh club and transferred his players there he took Pulliam with him.

One of Pulliam's greatest "discoveries" in baseball was finding Hans Wagner, the best player in the game today. Wagner was playing in Paterson, N. J., at the time, and Pulliam went there on the recommendation of a friend and looked Wagner over. He signed him to a contract and took him to Louisville.

Pulliam stayed with the Pittsburgh club until 1902, when he was elected president of the National league, succeeding N. E. Young. About the time of his accession to the presidency peace was brought about between the National league and the American league, which had been at war. Pulliam proved to be an energetic official for the National league and with considerable executive ability. During his regime many vexatious problems have arisen, and he always was active and conscientious in dealing with such matters. He was anything but a figurehead president. One of the hardest problems he had to deal with was the famous New York-Chicago game of last year, which ended in a row at the Polo grounds in New York and was afterward played over on the order of the board of directors.

Once or twice efforts were made at the league annual meetings to oust Pulliam from the presidency, his administration not suiting all hands, but he had too strong support among the magnates, and the opposition to him dwindled away. He was high strung and plain spoken, but impartial, and his honesty of purpose always has been recognized.

While he was in office the National league came to enjoy greater prosperity than it ever had before, the existence of two big leagues operating under a peace compact being partly responsible for the prosperity. Some of it, however, was due to his own efforts for the welfare of the game. He always had been a stickler for having his umpires treated with the respect he considered was due them and stuck to his umpires through thick and thin.

WOMAN TRAIL BLAZER.

Exploit of Mrs. James A. Cruikshank in the White Mountains.

A slender little woman—Mrs. James A. Cruikshank of New York—recently completed a feat which no one of the many mountaineers who have for years explored the White mountains has ever attempted—the blazing of a new and easily accessible trail from Mount Field to Mount Willey, according to a dispatch from Bretton Woods, N. H.

Accompanied by her husband, who was always in the rear and only present as a guard, Mrs. Cruikshank walked, crawled or climbed over fifteen miles of heavily wooded mountain country, three miles of which had never been invaded previously and most of which was such as to test the powers of the most experienced of mountaineers.

Although Mount Field and Mount Willey were already the terminals of trails from other mountains, they have never been connected by a path until the other night.

Mrs. Cruikshank holds a record for mountain climbing in Canada.

With Message For the President Hopes to Make New Saddle Record.

With the greeting and invitation from thousands of Texans to President Taft safely tucked away and in full cowboy regalia, Ed S. O'Reilly, editor of the San Antonio Light and Gazette, bade adieu to more than 5,000 enthusiastic San Antonians the other afternoon en route to Washington. The start was made from in front of the historic Alamo in San Antonio.

To ride to Washington with an invitation for President Taft was an idea that impressed Mr. O'Reilly favorably as soon as it had been conceived. That the task might prove too much for him or his steed troubled him little. If Mr. O'Reilly has to make forty miles a day for the entire trip he will make them.

There is one factor in the undertaking that would discourage the average man, but which to Mr. O'Reilly will only mean employing a little more grit. He has to reach Washington not later than the middle of September. Were it not that he is riding a cow pony of the best Texas stock, an animal of great stamina, endurance and tenacity, his chances of reaching Washington would be slim indeed. But Aransas, a mare bred on Mr. Taft's brother's ranch on the gulf, will prove more than equal to the occasion. Hers is that steady, swinging stride which only generations of hard work in the chaparral rounding up cattle could have given her and her ancestors. Change of feed and water means little to the Texas pony, because selection and elimination on the home plains are strong factors and have weeded out all that is unfit.

The successful completion of the trip would put all previous long distance rides in the shade. Since the days of the pony express nothing like it has been attempted. Even the ride between Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Santa Fe, N. M., less than one-half the distance Mr. O'Reilly purposes to cover, was considered a remarkable performance.

The first Methodist institutional church in Cincinnati was dedicated the other morning in the old historic Asbury M. E. church. The institutional features of the church, however, will not be formally opened till fall.

The church differs from other places of worship in that it is equipped with a kitchen, dining room and industrial educational features. It has a well supplied library and reading room that will be open at all hours during the day. It is expected that Methodists of Cincinnati will shortly begin preparations to fit out other churches in the same way.

JUSTICE MOODY SERIOUSLY ILL

Removed to His Home With Much Secrecy.

APPEARED TO BE HELPLESS

While His Condition Was Officially Announced to Be Due to Rheumatism and Gout, Local Physicians at Haverhill Are Inclined to Attach More Serious Significance to the Ailment—Taken From Railway Station to His Home in an Ambulance, Supreme Court Justice Appeared to Be Helpless During the Transfer.

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 1.—Associate Justice William H. Moody of the United States supreme court was removed in a police ambulance from the Bradford railroad station to his home here last night with many precautions for secrecy. It is understood that his condition is serious. He appeared to be helpless during the transfer from the train to the ambulance. Although Justice Moody's ailment was announced officially as a case of rheumatism and gout, local physicians who have known him for years believe it to be more serious.

Justice Moody came here, it is understood, from a sanitarium in New York state, where he has been for several weeks following a short stay at Hot Springs, Ark. No intimation of his indisposition had been received here previously.

SCORES MCLELLAN

Coler Says Gotham's Mayor Is Squandering People's Money.

New York, Sept. 1.—Bird S. Coler, president of the borough of Brooklyn, has filed charges against Mayor McClellan with Gov. Hughes. Mr. Coler alleges that Mayor McClellan has squandered money in investigations by his commissioner of accounts and that these investigations have been aimed solely at his political opponents for political purposes and not for the general good of the city government.

In the investigation of the office of the president of the borough of Brooklyn alone, Coler charges that the mayor has "misplaced public funds of the city of New York to the extent of at least $100,000."

OLD SULTAN INSANE

Turkey's Former Ruler Said to Be Demented Through Fear.

Vienna, Sept. 1.—According to information from the highest authority coming to the Neue Freie Presse, incipient insanity has attacked former Sultan Abdul Hamid. It says that the deposed ruler's constant fear of assassination at the hands of agents of the new regime in Turkey has shaken his mind.

Abdul has not slept for a week, and at times his ravings have been so loud as to disturb everybody in the great house in which he is imprisoned on the outskirts of Salonika. Physicians have failed utterly to give relief and the death of the former ruler is believed to be imminent.

General Cavanaugh Dead.

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 1.—General Thomas H. Cavanaugh, aged sixty-six years, is dead here. He was a native of Indianapolis and served in the Illinois cavalry in the civil war. President Arthur appointed him inspector of lands in Washington, and President Harrison made him surveyor general. He had been department commander of the G. A. R. for Washington and Alaska.

Damaged Beyond Repair.

Liverpool, Sept. 1.—A survey of the Cunard line steamer Lucania, which caught fire at her dock here Aug. 14 and was sunk in order to quench the flames, shows the damage to be so extensive that the Cunard company probably will decide not to repair the vessel. It is estimated that it will cost upward of $500,000 to refit the steamer.

THE SPIRIT OF THE MEN IS EXCELLENT

Spanish Soldiers Clamor to Be Led Forward.

Melilla, Sept. 1.—The fact that the Spanish lines of communication are now absolutely safe and that the spirit of the men is excellent, is disclosed by a visit to the Spanish lines at Zoco de Larba. The first brigade of picked troops from Madrid now find themselves in a country ideal for both infantry and cavalry, very different from the somber gorges of Gurugu, where the soldier never saw the enemy, but was shot down from behind rocks without the hope of replying.

The Spanish troops feel that they are in a position at the present time to meet the enemy on terms of equality, and all are clamoring to be led forward. The white walls of Zeluau are visible in the distance, but many difficulties are still ahead. Water has to be brought from Restinga or Mellila on mules, and the task is increasing in difficulty as the army moves inland, although good water should be found at Zeluau.

The Duke of Saragosa and the Marquis of Villacerrato, who marched out from Mellila as privates, have already been promoted to full sergeants with the hope of speedily gaining a commissioned rank. The Spanish advance has had the effect of splitting the Riff forces, and recent attacks on convoys have been much less serious.

SPLIT AMONG MINERS

National and District Officers at Loggerheads Over Strike.

Pittsburg, Sept. 1.—Twenty thousand union miners will likely go on strike in the Pittsburg district today, though unsanctioned either by President Lewis or the national executive board of the United Mine Workers of America.

District leaders decreed the strike after a conference that has lasted two days between the Pittsburg district mine operators and union officials over the use of black powder, the new explosive ordered by the state, in mining coal. President Lewis asserted he would hold another conference with the operators to settle the trouble. District President Feehan declares, however, that whether President Lewis holds the conference or not, he will order the men in his district to lay down their tools.

The present trouble between the national and district organization is the outgrowth of a long-standing feud between President Lewis and President Feehan, dating back to Lewis's election to his present office.

A LONE-HANDED TRAIN ROBBER

Pennsylvania Express Train Held Up in the Alleghenies and Lone Bandit Compelled Crew to Help Him Carry Out the Treasure—Deceived by the Glitter of Ten Thousand Bright New Pennies, the Robber Leaves Bullion Bags and Scatters Off With His Copper Loot.

Lewis own, Pa., Sept. 1.—On the eastern slope of the Allegheny mountains, occurred one of the most audacious and startling holdups of a train in the east in years when a lone highwayman stopped a Pennsylvania railroad express train with a dynamite cartridge and at the point of a revolver compelled the crew to carry thousands of dollars in coin and bullion from an express car to a spot in the wilderness.

When the conductor of the train attempted to interfere with the robbers' plans he was shot in the hand and the bold bandit succeeded in making good his escape. In the darkness, however, he mistook a bag containing 10,000 new Lincoln pennies for gold coin and staggered away with it, leaving the real gold bullion to be recovered by the railroaders.

Conductor I. R. Poffenberger of Harrisburg, Pa., who came up while this work was being accomplished, was ordered back by the bandit, who emptied one of his revolvers at him, one of the shots penetrating his hand and the others grazing his body.

Despite the appearance of three passengers who had been awakened by the shooting, the robber calmly ordered the crew back on the train and compelled them to steam away, leaving the bullion beside the track. It was recovered later by a posse sent on a special train. When the train was leaving, he called out: "Goodbye and good luck; I hope to see you again."

It was reported that in addition to the missing pennies, several thousand dollars in currency was missing, but the express company officials refuse to announce the exact amount of their loss.

When the news of the robbery reached the railroad and express company officials they were deeply concerned at its boldness and immediately ordered every available detective from the east and west to the scene in an effort to capture the robber. Bloodhounds were also put on his track, but no trace of the man has been found.

Carried Up by Balloon and Killed.

Monon, Ind., Sept. 1.—Henry Moore, a well-known laboring man of this place, was killed in a sensational manner here. While hundreds were watching a balloon fill, it escaped and loose ropes wrapping about the legs of Moore, who was assisting the aeronaut, caught him up and dashed him among telegraph wires. Torn loose from the ropes, he fell to the ground and died instantly.

A Slaughter House Tragedy.

St. Charles, Mo., Sept. 1.—With hands and feet bound with wire, the body of John McNealy, a butcher, was found in a trough in a slaughter house on the outskirts of this city.
